

Three interior designers get crafty with Eldorado Stone and create mood boards to inspire upcoming design projects. Each reflecting their individual design styles, these compositions bring empty rooms and custom homes to life right before our eyes.

To learn more, visit eldoradostone.com.

Lauren Christine Henno
Lauren Christine Henno Design

COASTAL LIVING

My mood board represents my relaxed yet cultivated design style. Each piece included was handpicked during my recent travels in Ecuador, and blends perfectly with Eldorado Stone's Limestone in Austin Cream. I can see the stone in a future project – perhaps a beautiful accent wall, or backyard fire pit.

Claudia Afshar
Claudia Afshar Design

GLOBALLY INSPIRED

Eldorado Stone's LedgeCut 33 in Birch reminds me of my childhood spent amongst Spain's cobble roads and historic architecture. It inspired a dream design project – a contemporary villa with warm & textural components, integrating timeless materials, earth tones and olive green accents.

Vance Burke
Vance Burke Interior Design

MODERN BEAUTY

Decorators are storytellers. The color, texture, size and shape of stone influences the story it's going to tell. When creating this mood board with Eldorado Stone's Zen24 in Nickel, I imagined a beautiful fireplace wall with natural elements and a modern design aesthetic.